

How to Identify Your Routing and Account Number

When ordering checks online or setting up a direct deposit or online bill payment, you will need to know Neighbors Credit Union's routing number and your account number. To easily and quickly obtain these numbers, refer to the bottom of your personal checks.

Routing Numbers: A unique 9-digit number is assigned to each financial institution for accurate routing of checks and electronic activity. Neighbors Credit Union's routing number is 281082384.

Account Number: This includes your member number along with other important numbers required for check clearing and electronic activity (i.e. direct deposit, ACH deposits and withdrawals). This number will be slightly different for your primary checking, secondary checking, and money market account. It is important to look at the bottom of your check for this information before setting up electronic activity.

Check Number: The last group of numbers is the sequential number labeling each check. This number is not needed in setting up electronic activity.
